Excerpt from "Warrior Princess"

"I remember the first time I put on a dress. I was 10 years old, and I was home alone. I found my mother's dress in her closet, and I tried it on. It felt so right. I felt like I was finally myself. But I was also terrified. I knew that if my parents found out, they would be angry. So I took the dress off and put it back in my mother's closet.

I spent the next several years living in fear. I was afraid of being discovered, afraid of being rejected. I tried to suppress my feelings, but they wouldn't go away.

Finally, when I was 20 years old, I decided to come out to my parents. I was terrified, but I knew that I couldn't live my life in fear anymore.

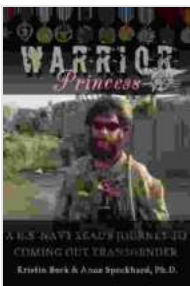

My parents were shocked and confused at first. But they eventually came to accept me for who I am. They have been my biggest supporters throughout my journey.”
