Developing Counsellor Supervision is a comprehensive guide to the theory and practice of counsellor supervision. It is written by a team of experienced supervisors and trainers, and provides a wealth of information and resources for both practitioners and trainees.

The book begins with an overview of the history and development of counsellor supervision. It then goes on to discuss the different models of supervision, and the roles and responsibilities of supervisors and supervisees.

The book also includes a range of exercises and case studies to help readers develop their skills in supervision. These exercises are designed to help readers reflect on their own practice, identify areas for development, and develop their skills in providing feedback and support to supervisees.

Developing Counsellor Supervision is an essential resource for all counsellors and other helping professionals who are involved in supervision. It is a comprehensive guide to the theory and practice of supervision, and provides a wealth of information and resources for both practitioners and trainees.
