Ron and Bui were both young men who had been drafted into their respective armies. They had both seen the horrors of war and had lost friends and loved ones. But despite their differences, they shared a common bond: they were both human beings who wanted to survive.

One day, Ron and Bui were patrolling a jungle trail when they came under fire. Ron was hit in the leg and fell to the ground. Bui could have easily killed Ron, but he didn't. Instead, he risked his own life to help Ron back to safety.

Ron and Bui's story is a powerful reminder that even in the midst of war, there is hope for reconciliation. It is a story of two men who were able to overcome their differences and find peace.

Reconciliation

In 1995, Ron and Bui met for the first time since the war. They had both been invited to speak at a conference on reconciliation. At first, they were both hesitant to meet. But after talking for a while, they realized that they had more in common than they thought.

Ron and Bui have been friends ever since. They have traveled the world together, speaking about their experiences and promoting reconciliation. They have also worked together to help other veterans heal from the wounds of war.
