In his book, The True Story Of An American Ranger At War In Afghanistan And Iraq, Eversmann recounts his experiences in some of the most dangerous and intense combat zones in the world. He writes about the horrors of war, the bonds of brotherhood that are forged in the crucible of battle, and the scars that war can leave on the soul.

Eversmann's story is a powerful reminder of the sacrifices that our soldiers make every day, and it is a testament to the indomitable spirit of the American warrior.

A Life of Service

Matt Eversmann was born in 1971 in Boulder, Colorado. He enlisted in the US Army in 1990, and after completing basic training and Ranger School, he was assigned to the 3rd Ranger Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment.

Eversmann served in a variety of combat roles, including as a sniper, a team leader, and a platoon sergeant. He deployed to Afghanistan in 2001 and to Iraq in 2003.

In Iraq, Eversmann was the leader of a Ranger team that was tasked with capturing or killing Saddam Hussein. The team eventually tracked Hussein down to a farmhouse in Tikrit, and Eversmann was one of the soldiers who took him into custody.

After returning from Iraq, Eversmann retired from the Army and began a new career as a motivational speaker. He also wrote a book about his experiences in Afghanistan and Iraq, which became a New York Times bestseller.

The True Story of An American Ranger at War in Afghanistan and Iraq
